KeyPoint Government Solutions names Damon Hudson President of Clearance and Inspection Services Business Unit

Loveland, CO., Jan 5, 2012 – KeyPoint Government Solutions has named Damon Hudson President of the KeyPoint Clearance and Inspection Services Business Unit. Mr. Hudson will be responsible for day to day operations of the unit and will report directly to the CEO, Jeff Schlanger.

Mr. Hudson joins KeyPoint from USIS where he served as the Vice President of Investigative Programs, managing a diverse portfolio of clients within the intelligence community, healthcare and homeland security sectors. “I am looking forward to working with Jeff and the team and building upon KeyPoint’s success in the National Security Industry. KeyPoint’s market position is well suited for substantial growth and I am thrilled to be part of it.”

In addition to extensive operational management experience, Mr. Hudson brings strong business development skills to his new KeyPoint position. He has led investigative business development and developed marketing strategy resulting in the capture of multiple contracts for anti-fraud services, federal investigative services and international investigations. In the past five years Mr. Hudson led successful capture efforts for more than 25 contracts that were cumulatively valued at more than $300M and supported agencies ranging from the Department of Justice to the Department of Homeland Security. Damon has a Bachelor’s Degree in Business Management from George Mason University.

“I am very pleased that Damon has joined the KeyPoint team,” said Schlanger. “His experience leading people, managing to customer expectations, and providing innovative thinking in a changing environment adds complimentary business perspective and operational expertise to our already strong management team.”
